a new phase of life at Elkhdale has begun now that winter has set in. at the moment it is in the 20's outside and the wind is blowing and it sounds and is cold. Life inside the tent is very comfortable and proceeds, as usual, in a forward direction. Naturally, there is some anxiety/wonder/question about whether or not I shall be able to winter over here. Having been away all day, the house is cold through and through -- no sun at all today. It takes a good half hour to get my heating system in operation and so it is just now heating up to the very comfortable stage (I returned here around 9:20 & now it is 10 P.M.). Ce matin there were about five inches of snow on my car -- and everywhere. Very beautiful. I wanted to take a picture/photograph before leaving at 8 A.M., but did not get to it because I was running a little late and didn't want to be late for my meeting with RGT. The bill up by Compuwriter was not plowed and I had some apprehension about my Renault's ability to negotiate the hill. Success. No spinning or slipping or sliding at all. When I returned from town Ce soir at 6 P.M. I came by way of Clifford -- I did not want to come down that hill. On my way into Carbondale for the 7:30 P.M. Mayor's Advisory Council meeting I drove up the hill from here to Oundoff -- largely open, however there were some drifts between the top of the hill and Oundoff, and so I decided that I would return here, after the Mayor's meeting, by way of Clifford -- which I did. Just as I have to work out cold weather routines inside the building, so, too, I have to get cold weather routines for the outside. Discovery -- a voyage of discovery.
